Spring break trip to Cancun ends in violence

Students allege travel agency failed to warn them of local dangers

David Ferrera
News/Features Editor

A Spring Break trip to Cancun, Mexico that turned to disaster for ten SSU students beginning March 21 has left many college students fearful of traveling abroad.

On Tuesday, March 23, Justin D. Wilde was robbed of $80 at gunpoint by local police, according to a report in The Daily Times and co-traveller Ron M. Sisk.

On Wednesday, March 24, the American students were on a crowded bus around 2:30 a.m. According to The Daily Times article, some locals on the bus began teasing SSU student Peter Best about his recently dyed blond hair.

Best and his friends began teasing back, but soon things escalated. Best claimed a man ran from the back of the bus and kicked him in the back. This led to a fight involving 15-20 locals, who pushed Best off the bus.

Wilde got off the bus to rescue his friend but was punched in the face, breaking his nose. Best was arrested and spent three hours in jail. While in custody, Best claimed he was taunted and beaten by police officers.

Wilde went back to the hotel to find the other friends he was traveling with. Wilde found Tim H. Gentry. Wilde and Gentry went to the police station and posted a $500 bail to release Best.

The boys contacted the American Embassy counsel and, according to the students, were asked if they had been drinking and may have provoked the attack.

According to Sisk, the students, members of a group of athletes called On the Smooth Tip (OST), had been drinking, but were not intoxicated or out of control.

The students were also angered by the treatment they claimed to have received from the travel service that arranged the trip for them, Student Travel Services (STS). Members of the group claim STS refused to transfer them to another hotel upon their first request. When the request was granted the students were told it would cost $170 each, but they were able to negotiate the price down to $70 per person.

SSU student Ron Sisk organized the trip to Cancun.

Mark Stacey, the Cancun representative for STS, contradicted the students' story and said he moved the students as soon as they requested a transfer. He added that an upgrade charge was required to make the move.

Stacey said the group was paranoid and afraid for their safety if they stayed at their original hotel in downtown Cancun. Stacey said he upgraded the group from a three star hotel to a five star resort.

According to Stacey, the group originally told him they had been jumped. Upon further questioning he said they admitted to being drunk and that they had been talking "trash" to the locals on the bus.

Stacey said Best punched an off-duty police officer and was arrested. He added that Best was lucky to be out in three hours and ordinarily may have been imprisoned for three days. He also said that he saw Best after his release and it looked as though he had been roughed up.

Speaker sparks controversy over SOAP programming

Hugh Bouchelle
Flyer Staff Writer

The staff of Student Organization for Activity Planning (SOAP) are frustrated over the controversy raised when River Huston recently spoke at SSU. Huston's program, advertised as "Sex, Drugs and River: A Positive Life Living With AIDS," was designed to familiarize students with safe sex practices and how to eroticize safe sex.

Not all students were pleased with the lecture. In an article in The Liberty, a newsletter published by the SSU Collegiate Conservative Society Inc., Michael Andersen, wrote, "While SSU claimed Huston's lecture was of an 'educational' nature, many students there were upset that thousands of their dollars were spent to teach masturbation." WBOC-TV 16, a local TV station, read the article and did a feature story on the issue for their evening news just prior to spring break.

According to SOAP staff, the lecture was attended by a record number of students and was well received. Their office received no complaints. SOAP President Gaylen Garnand said, "The complaint was a surprise to us. We knew nothing about it until WBOC News called and asked for an interview. It's been such a waste of time. I don't understand why [Andersen] didn't come to us to complain first."

According to SOAP staff, River Huston said this was the first complaint she had ever received from a college campus.

SSU President Bill Merwin's office did receive two complaints, according to Dr. Karin E. Johnson, executive assistant to the President. One was by phone and they didn't leave their name. The other was a letter from a non-student, at-large Wicomico County Council candidate William F. Stacey.

In a letter to Merwin, Stacey wrote, "I am equally disturbed by the amount of money which is spent by the Student Organization for Activity Planning to support the Left Wing Democratic agenda."

Stacey continued in the letter, "I find these types of programs morally offensive . . . I realize your position is to protect free speech, however this is Salisbury, Maryland, not Berkeley, California."

According to Johnson, president Merwin continues to support the student operated SOAP and their program selections.

Dr. Carol A. Williamson, vice president of student affairs, said her office had not received any complaints about the program beyond the letter forwarded to her from President Merwin's office. Williamson went on to say that the way SOAP goes about making selections, "was very judicious," and that she too continued to support the program.

Programs are selected by SOAP through an organization called the National Association for Campus Activities (NACA). NACA serves as a quality control group to assist campus activity organizations to select proven programs for presentation on their individual campuses.

Kristen McFadden, lecture chairperson for SOAP who selected the River Huston lecture, had already seen Huston's performance at a NACA conference the previous year.

"I realize your position is to protect free speech, however this is Salisbury, Maryland, not Berkeley, California."

-William Stacey, Wicomico County Council Candidate

According to McFadden, the selection of this topic was based on an informal survey conducted at the end of last semester. The survey questioned students on the type of programs they would like to see SOAP acquire. McFadden said over 50 percent of the respondents selected health and sex as subjects they would like to see presented.

In a phone interview about his article in The Liberty, Andersen said he

Violent Femmes set to headline WSUR's Gullapalooza

David Ferrera
News/Features Editor

The Student Organization for Activity Planning (SOAP) announced at a press conference today that Violent Femmes, a rock and roll band known for hits such as "Blister In The Sun" and "Kiss Off," will be the headline performer at this year's WSUR Gullapalooza concert.

SOAP President Gaylen Garnand worked hard to negotiate the contract between SSU and the band. Violent Femmes ordinarily asks for a $30,000 appearance fee, but Garnand was able to talk the agents down to $20,000.

The announcement of the performance by the Violent Femmes marks the first time a nationally recognized band has headlined WSUR's annual charity concert. The concert is scheduled for May 2 and begins at 12 p.m. on the intramural fields.

Violent Femmes, which has been around for 15 years and produced eight albums, consists of Gordon Gano (vocals, guitar), Brian Ritchie (bass, vocals) and Guy Hoffman (drums, vocals). They released their first and most popular self-titled album in 1982. Hits from Violent Femmes include "Gone Daddy Gone" and "Gimme The Car."

Violent Femmes were formed in Milwaukee, Wis. and relied on a formula of acoustic guitar, bass and drums long before it became fashionable. "We would play acoustically and we would play on the street because we couldn't get any place to play inside," said Gano.

While WSUR is organizing the opening acts for Gullapalooza, it is SOAP that is responsible for and sponsoring the appearance by Violent Femmes.

*On Friday, April 3, a study was released showing that the number of American teenagers smoking has increased despite the growing public debate on the issue. According to the study done by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention, smoking rates among high school students rose from 27.5 percent to 36.4 percent between 1991 and 1997.

*On Thursday, April 2, Coretta Scott King, widow of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., called on President Bill Clinton to appoint a commission to examine evidence of James Earl Ray's claim that he was set up as a patsy in the assassination of the civil rights leader. The King family claims Ray is innocent and is seeking a new trial for him.

*On Wednesday, April 1, U.S. District Court Judge Susan Webber Wright rejected Paula Jones's sexual harassment claim against President Bill Clinton. Wright concluded that even if the events in an Arkansas hotel took place as Jones claimed, it did not constitute sexual assault or harassment. "There are no genuine issues for trial in this case," wrote Wright. Independent Counsel Kenneth W. Starr said the ruling would have no effect on his investigation into whether Clinton tampered with witnesses.

*On Wednesday, April 1, the Senate Commerce Committee voted 19 to one to establish the nation's first comprehensive tobacco policy. The bill calls for increasing the price of cigarettes with a $1.10 fee on every pack of cigarettes over the next five years; restricting tobacco advertising and marketing; and limiting the cigarette industry's liability to $6.5 billion a year.

*On Friday, April 3, a Maryland panel found the Salisbury and Wicomico County councils guilty of violating state sunshine laws by discussing consolidation of government services at a private luncheon and not before the City, The Licks, Common Ground and the winner of the Battle of the Bands contest at the Crossroads, which is still to be determined.

Tickets to the concert are free with an SSU ID and $5 for guests of SSU students. Proceeds from the concert this year will benefit the Eastern Shore Aids Foundation, according to WSUR General Manager Jennifer Finger.

SOAP speaker draws criticism

PROGRAMMING, from front page felt the presentation was, "inappropriate and indecent." He continued, "I don't feel safe sex is indecent, but the way it was presented as a joke was." Andersen, who did not attend the lecture, said he talked to others who attended and who shared his views. He complained that student dollars should not be spent for programs of this nature.

Every student attending SSU pays a $70 student activities fee. About one quarter of that money is allotted to SOAP by SSU appropriations. This past year that amount was $125,000. With this money SOAP sponsors programs, movies and trips for the students at SSU. The cost of the River Huston Lecture was a little over $3,000.

Although frustrated at this recent negative response, SOAP welcomes all student input regarding program selection and comments on current activities.

Salisbury businesses concerned about unfair competition

Rick Barnard
Flyer Staff Writer

Complaints from local businesses about SSU presenting unfair competition in the community appear to be settled after a meeting between administrators and the Salisbury Hotel, Motel and Restaurant Association on March 10.

The meeting was prompted after WBOC-TV 16 aired a story about local businesses complaining about SSU's business practices.

According to Richard Pusey, the vice-president of administration and finance, the group was concerned about the scope of SSU's catering business. They felt SSU was advertising to the community and offering lower prices because of its status as a state institution, according to Pusey.

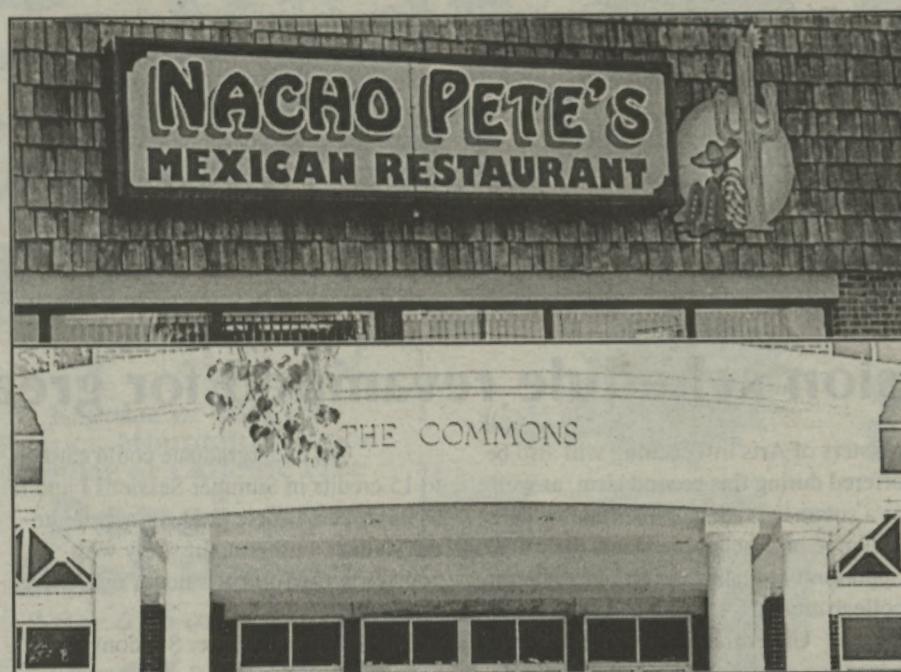

In response to the broadcast, SSU officials invited members of the Salisbury Hotel, Motel and Restaurant Association to meet and voice their complaints directly.

Gains Hawkins, SSU's public relations director, said that members of the Association thought this violated a 1990 agreement SSU made with local businesses. This agreement was made after businesses complained that SSU's Brunch on the Hill program was unfairly stealing business.

According to Hawkins, SSU promised to hold the event in conjunction with other special events, such as parent's day and open houses and made other promises to be appear less competitive. According to Pusey, admitted these groups receive a discount price.

SSU does not advertise its services to the community, Pusey said,

Local businesses have expressed concerns about having to compete with SSU organizations, such as University Dining Services.

but its services are open to the community. These outside groups have to pay a premium price, Pusey said, but added that taxpayers should have access to the services of a state institution. SSU promised not to cater groups less than 50, Pusey said.

According to Karin Johnson, assistant to the president, some of the businesses were afraid of losing business to the Commons. She said that there were fears that groups, such as the Rotary Club, were choosing to hold meetings in the Commons instead of local restaurants like they used to.

Johnson said she believed groups chose the Commons out of curiosity. It is hard to miss the latest addition to campus and people want to see what it is like. She said that the fervor over the new building should die down and things will get back to normal with local restaurants.

Though there were no permanent resolutions made, Pusey, Hawkins and Johnson all said they felt the meeting had some positive results. According to Pusey, the meeting showed that SSU wants to be a team player and is willing to be a part of the community.

Hawkins felt some old issues were resolved and that new concerns had been addressed. Pusey said that in the future the Association will give specific complaints, should they arise. Johnson said she was confident that everything could be worked out and did not want to cast a negative light on the issue.

Members of the Hotel, Motel and Restaurant Association could not be reached for comment.

Safety of travelling abroad debated after incident in Mexico hundred and twenty students from various schools were staying in the Caribe International Hotel at the time of the incident and this was the only problem reported to STS.

SSU officials investigated the incident when they received calls from concerned parents. Director of Public Relations Gains Hawkins, said the university is interested in preventing this sort of thing from happening in the future and want to find out whether or not STS misrepresented themselves to the students.

Hawkins said that if it did seem STS misrepresented the vacation to the students a ban on STS advertising on campus could be instituted. Hawkins added that they contacted the students in Cancun because parents had called the school. Hawkins stressed that SSU did not sponsor the trip.

Baranoski said the events involving the SSU students were not a normal situation. He said STS sends 20,000 to 25,000 students abroad every year and this is the first time they have ever had this severe a problem in Cancun.

Hawkins denied a claim made by Sisk that SSU offered to fly the students out of Cancun immediately and pay for the tickets. Sisk said he misunderstood Hawkins when he called them in Cancun. He said Hawkins told them he was calling to make sure things were okay and asked if SSU needed to Sisk said he saw students drinking and smoking, but nobody from his group was involved in that behavior. He also said people were very upset at the long delay and were angered at the treatment they received.

Sisk said the ground crew treated them like kids and STS presented each person with a $7 voucher to Burger King to compensate the inconvenience of the delay.

Sisk said he will never go back to Cancun. "I'm staying in this country for a while," he said. Sisk also said the students were considering the possibility of legal action against various parties, but did not know what their options were at the moment.

Baranoski said STS has been operating for 14 years and has never had this kind of problem before. He said Cancun is extremely safe and comparable to American cities.

King said he hopes to use the students story next fall to share with other students so this type of situation can be avoided in the future.

Mayoral primary guarantees Salisbury's first female mayor

Blair Morse
Flyer Staff Writer

The race is on to see who will become the city of Salisbury's first female mayor. Carolyn Hall and Barrie Parsons Tilghman have advanced to the general election for the new mayor of Salisbury, to be held on May 5. The primary, held Tuesday, resulted in 1,035 votes for Hall and 953 for Tilghman. Rob Ryan received 225 votes and Donald Long took in 65.

Hall, the winner of the primary, is the city council president, and it appears that has helped her more than hindered her in the Salisbury citizens' minds. Tilghman has been very visible throughout the community and it obviously helped her at the polls. The primary results are definite in determining who will go to the general election, although 105 absentee ballots will be counted on Thursday.

The biggest story to come out of the city elections though, was the enforcement of it, was said to be the big dismal turnout by Salisbury's residents, in which only 20 percent of registered voters even bothered to come out for the primary election, open to all voters. The numbers were down from the last mayoral primary in 1994, when 26 percent showed up. And all of this happened on a gorgeous day, with four strong candidates and some issues at the top of the list that are very important to Salisbury residents: crime and kids.

Issue this year, at least among the 20 percent of voters who showed up. In the city council elections, Councilwoman Lavonza Siggers and Eugenie P. Shields will face off in the District 1 city council General Election, with Siggers winning the primary by a count of 116-75 votes. In District 2 it will be Gregg B. Holland and James P. Ireton, Jr. in the general election, with Holland winning the primary by a count of 847-622 votes.

SSU summer session schedule revamped for greater flexibility

SSU has revamped its Summer Session 1998 schedule for the convenience of students, who will now be able to start and finish summer classes sooner and attend a four-day week designed to fit better with work and travel plans. Summer Session I will run June 1-July 2, with undergraduate and graduate courses in many disciplines including Master of Arts in Teaching.

Summer Session II will have the same format as Summer Session I. It will be held from July 6-August 6 with no Friday classes. Classes for the Masters of Arts in Teaching will also be offered during this second term, as well as a summer academic institute which will give high school students the opportunity to take selected courses for college credit.

Undergraduate and graduate education courses and classes required for education majors only (not including Master of Arts in Teaching) will be offered in a six-week separate session, Summer Session III, from June 22-July 30.

An undergraduate could earn up to 15 credits in Summer Sessions I and II to improve a course grade or accelerate the student's program of study with courses in the student's major or General Education.

SSU's Summer Sessions are open to area high school students with permission from their principals, to recent high school graduates who, with approval from the college they will attend, want a head start on higher education, and to students from other colleges and universities who plan to spend the summer in the Salisbury area.

The registration schedule booklet for the Summer Sessions was made available April 6. Classes will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Graduate and undergraduate students who have already taken courses at SSU can register for the Summer Sessions by touch-tone phone. Please call 410-543-6150 between 8 a.m.-5 p.m. for details or to request a Summer Session booklet. You may also e-mail your request to jasa@ssu.edu.

Travelling abroad requires common sense

Recent events involving SSU students in Cancun have caused quite a stir about the safety of travelling abroad. Early reports of the arrest were grossly exaggerated which has led to many rumors. As the facts have slowly come into focus it can safely be said that Cancun and most other foreign travel destinations are as safe as the person travelling makes it.

It is important to be aware of local laws and customs before travelling. The United States is still exceptional in its rights and guarantees to people, despite the growing spread of democracy in foreign nations.

It is wise not to cause a disturbance when far from home. Believe it or not, a good time can be had without becoming drunk, loud or rude. The local citizenry in Salisbury would not be tolerant of the behavior exhibited by these students in Cancun.

However, the Salisbury police would not very likely brutalize students involved in making a scene. The fact that violence was used against the students in Cancun is unfortunate and should not have happened.

According to an article in The Washington Post, Cancun officials are trying to solve the problem of rowdy, drunken behavior by requiring students to sign contracts agreeing to abide by codes of behavior.

Less drinking may help reduce the number of encounters students have with the police. Student Travel Services (STS) representatives said the treatment the SSU students received in Cancun by the police could have happened in any U.S. city.

While this may be an unfortunate truth, that does not make the treatment acceptable. STS officials also said that police in Cancun are issued machine guns as standard procedure. Again, while it may be the norm to carry machine guns, there is no excuse for using them to rob college

Random acts of violence are a problem everywhere, whether it be Salisbury, New York City or another country. The Centre at Salisbury had a shooting incident where innocent shoppers were injured. Random shootings are the norm for any big city. A few months ago, a group of St. Mary's College students were attacked by militant rebels, raped and robbed.

Compared to these incidents the SSU students should consider themselves lucky, especially when their contribution to the problem is added to the equation. One of the students said, "Trouble always seems to find us."

For people with a history of having trouble find them, it may be time to consider some changes in lifestyle. Remember, behavior that would be frowned upon on home soil is even less acceptable abroad.

Paula Jones case proves sexual harassment lawsuits are out of control

David Ferrera
News/Features Editor

The decision by U.S. District Court Judge Susan Webber Wright to dismiss the Paula Jones lawsuit against President Bill Clinton is hopefully the first step in bringing sexual harassment law under control.

Currently, there are no clear guidelines set out by this country's highest judicial body, the U.S. Supreme Court, on what constitutes sexual harassment and what does not.

There are two generally accepted definitions: quid pro quo in which it is clear that sex with a supervisor is necessary for advancement, raises or promotion. The other is a hostile environment, in which a victim feels the workplace has become opposed to them.

However, the cases involving sexual harassment have gotten out of control. A man was fired for telling a Seinfeld joke to a female co-worker. He sued for wrongful termination and won a large settlement, but the fact that a company feared a sexual harassment case more than the wrongful termination suit is evidence that sexual harassment has scared many into a paranoid reactionary state.

I am not questioning the facts in Jones's case that allege the President exposed himself to her. What is highly questionable is the effect this incident had on her. There was no proof of damage to her career and doubtful evidence that she developed a sexual aversion from the event.

Sexual harassment sends a chill down every man's spine as well as every CEO. It is a claim that is serious and one that needs to be addressed. Unfortunately, it creates a chilling atmosphere at work. What can be discussed at the water cooler and what is taboo?

Apparently, adults now need to have conversation ratings. How are people supposed to meet socially and date if they are at work 50 hours a week but cannot ask a person out for fear of being charged with sexual harassment? There was a time when asking a person for a date or commenting positively on their appearance was a compliment. Now it is harassing. How far will this go before it reaches complete lunacy? Should people be allowed to sue because a person is so attractive that they were compelled to ask them out? Have we become a society where compliments are no longer appreciated or tolerated?

The fact that the president of the U.S., the leader of the free world, can be tied up with a groundless sexual harassment suit proves that anyone is susceptible.

Ladies, you are the next target for litigation. It won't be long before more men complain that female supervisors are pulling the same stunts usually associated with male bosses.

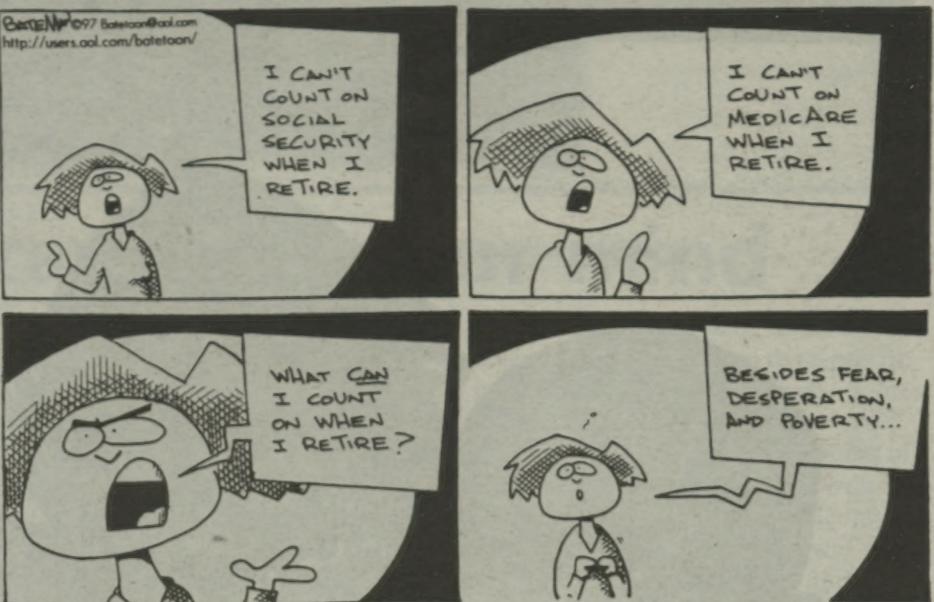

This will mean no more commenting on a man's physical attributes, no matter how firm or shapely they may be. Let this be a warning and I promise not to say I told you so if we don't reign in the need to sue because someone finds you attractive.

3 days, 185 miles... All on one butt

Hugh Bouchelle
Flyer Staff Writer

I thought with all the talk going around about bad spring breaks (read the Cancun article in today's The Flyer) I should put my two cents in. It all began with El Nino.

You see, the Bike Club had been planning a spring break ride of the C&O Canal for months. Three days, 185 miles, all on one butt. But a call to the National Park Service the day before the trip ruined it all. The canal was flooded thanks to El Nino.

Where could a group of clean mountain bikers go to get dirty without drowning? The answer was revealed to us in a dream . . . New Jersey! Go east young man, to the land of high adventure. The Pine Barrens await you.

So with a pocket full of money, (already allotted for the canal trip) no real plans and an itching to see new horizons, we headed out. Only six daring souls had decided to continue the adventure. The rest missed a great trip.

Night one: Because we had no reservations we were forced to camp out in a nice hotel near the beach about thirty miles north of Atlantic City. We stopped. Now at this point you may be thinking, "Hey, that wasn't so tough!" But don't be too hasty. One of our riders had a flat tire, I had to ride in the van for a while due to posterior soritus and it was sunny and some of us forgot our sunscreen and got burned. This was no trip for the weak of spirit.

Day Two was spent in the Pine Barrens. Most of us had never been there. It was rugged country and we spent most of the day roughing it in the woods, jumping logs, sliding sideways around turns, racing down single track trails and whooping and hollering to keep each other's spirits up under the adverse conditions.

That night we were forced to move again. This time to a place just outside of Atlantic City (off season rates you know). I believe I had salmon steak wanted to be careful to conserve the small truckload of rations we had brought along, (you never can tell what might happen) so we were forced to eat at the seafood restaurant near the hotel. Most of us had the shrimp and clams in white sauce over linguine, served with a will undoubtedly put some laughter back into your life. So put down those pencils, pull up a mug and enjoy some downhome uncensored comedy.

One of the greatest questions of our time is "Who shot JFK?" Well on April 28 at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room, performer Bob Harris will give an informative lecture on the JFK assassination and its surrounding conspiracies. He may not know the answer to the question, but his performance is sure to give viewers a deeper insight into the tragic event that occurred more than thirty years ago.

Calling all cowboys, cowgirls, Southern rock lovers and rock-n-roll enthusiasts! On Thursday, April 30 at 10 p.m. in the Crossroads Pub, North Carolina rockers Dakota will be performing their energetic melodies for all. This is not your normal country music. This band is sure to bring down the house with their blend of Southern and acoustic rock. Country lover or not, you will undoubtedly enjoy the high-octane sets produced by these up and coming rockstars!

If that doesn't do it for you, then you should check out acoustic rocker Eric Everett in Caruthers Hall Auditorium on Friday, May 1 at 11 p.m. Everett plays all of your favorite classic tunes, as well as a selection from his over 100 originals. A veteran of college campus performances, Everett is sure to put on a show that you must see to believe.

On Saturday, May 2, I wonder where a majority of the SSU campus will be? At Gullapalooza, of course. If you need a break from the music, then you should check out the Twister contest starting at 2 p.m. Sign ups for this competition will be held at the University Center information desk the week of Gullapalooza. The location is yet to be determined, but if you are at the concert, look for that multi-colored Twister mat. It is sure to provide a few laughs in this music-filled day.

What better way to end your semester than with a trip to King's Dominion. On Saturday, May 9, SSU students will be heading to this well known and exciting amusement park. Tickets will be on sale in advance at the University Center information desk, so get there early and sign up. It is sure to be a stress reliever before the all-dreaded SSU finals!

Senseless soundtrack lives up to its name

Music From the Dimension Motion Picture

Scale of 1 to 5)

Flyer Staff Writer

Senseless, ah, where the jokes could start. All the different cracks I'm sure you'll be expecting me to take at the expense of this movie and soundtrack. But, I'm not going to sink to that level, because the Senseless soundtrack does not warrant that kind of treatment, though you could quickly dismiss the soundtrack because of its lack of huge names, like some other soundtracks it is actually a solid piece of work.

The movie itself leaves much to be desired, starring Marlon Wayans, and the increasingly obnoxious and flighty David Spade. But, it does have Matthew Lillard (Stu from the movie Scream) in it and that is always a treat. Other than that, the movie's premises have been seen in some shape or form before, movies are so unoriginal these days. But back to the music, the better part of the movie it seems.

There is a fairly decent variety, though it is spread out in little blocks of genre, and not spread amongst other types of music on the album. There is some hard core techno from such techno superstars, Moby, the Crystal Method and Fatboy Slim, whose brand of techno is actually quite interesting and more mainstream than a lot of the other dance/techno recordings. They sound very good on this album, with their song, "Song for Lindy."

The Crystal Method adds to their growing techno and somewhat mainstream following with "Busy Child," a pleasantly confusing jam.

Moby, the godfather of techno, has been seen recently as somewhat of a turncoat because of a sudden switch to more conventional rock and roll. However, he tries to embrace both on his song "Graciosa," in what is a decidedly unpleasant confusing jam.

With a Wayans brother as the star, you knew there was going to be some hip-hop displayed for sheer head bobbing pleasure. The head bobbing is about all you get with the Jungle Brothers "Jungle Brother (True Blue) (Aphrodite Mix)" and whatever other crap they want to throw into parentheses after the song. All of this just tries to take the attention off the fact that the Jungle Brothers stink. The song is self-titled, of course. They should call the song "Jungle Brother (We Stink) (We are the worst) (Please buy our album.)"

On a more positive note, because once you have explored the negative, it makes the positive more obvious and enjoyable, the Gravediggaz turn in a good performance with "Unexplained".

The album saves the best for last, as movies themselves tend to, with "Look Around My Window," by Ambersunshower and the best song, "Perfect For You" by P.M. Dawn, who I have not heard in a while. This song makes me disappointed that I have not heard them for a while because their sweet groove really takes the edge off the rest of the album and puts it all into its own senseless perspective. Okay, I earned the right to make one cheap joke.

Jazz Ambassadors of Army Field Band to appear Apr. 30

The Jazz Ambassadors of the world-traveled U.S. Army Field Band present a free concert on Thursday, April 30, at 7 p.m. in SSU's Holloway Hall Auditorium. Co-sponsors for the event are The Daily Times and SSU.

Although admission to the concert is free, patrons are asked to bring a donation of nonperishable food for distribution to the area's needy by the Maryland Food Bank, Salisbury chapter.

Free tickets will be available beginning Wednesday, April 15, at The Daily Times on Carroll Street, the Salisbury branch of the Army Recruiting Center in the Court Plaza Shopping Plaza and SSU's Guerreri University Center information desk.

The Jazz Ambassadors, one of the four components of the U.S. Army Field Band, is the official touring jazz ensemble of the Department of the Army.

Each year these elite musicians travel thousands of miles throughout the nation to perform free concerts.

They have earned widespread acclaim with their distinctive musical style. They show remarkable versatility in their handling of tunes ranging from the swing sounds of the '30s to the popular songs of today's youth.

Many of the performers are also adept composers and arrangers. Their original compositions are sprinkled throughout each program. This arranging dexterity helps give the band its unique sound.

The performers have achieved national recognition through the superior standard of musicianship they maintain during hundreds of concerts before the public and on radio and television.

Recognized as one of the finest performing groups in America, the Jazz Ambassadors present the music of yesterday and today in a program that young and old alike will enjoy.

Bembenek takes ninth place twice at nationals

Aaron Talasnik
Flyer Sports Writer

A few weekends ago while everyone was packing up their bags to go on Spring Break SSU senior swimmer Chris Bembenek was heading to St. Louis, Missouri for Nationals. Bembenek became the first Sea Gull swimmer to ever be invited to the meet. He headed to St. Louis with a 20th seed in the 200 backstroke and 21st seed in the 100 backstroke. To a big surprise he finished ninth in both events receiving Honorable Mention All-American recognition.

"I was a little surprised with Chris's performance, but I knew that he could swim faster than he did this season. We were in a fast pool and he had the toughest competition of the season," said SSU head coach Jill Stephenson.

The trip to St. Louis wasn't easy. After departing from the Salisbury airport on Thursday, they landed in Philadelphia and had a long lay over, which caused them to get into St. Louis late that night. This didn't seem to be a problem at the time as Bembenek, of Panama descent, was not supposed to swim until Saturday. However they would soon find out that he would be swimming earlier than planned.

"We got to the pool on Friday and I was just warming up and getting used to the pool when I found out that I would be swimming in the 100 back that day. I didn't have too much sleep and hadn't shaved or anything. I wasn't as prepped as I had wanted to be," said Bembenek.

On Saturday it was back to business for Bembenek. He was seeded 20th in the 200yd backstroke. Bembenek was once again in lane one in the first event of the day. Bembenek finished fourth in his heat and 11th overall with another seasons best 1:54.

"I knew that it would be tough for me to move up in the standings that night, but it was my last swim so I wanted to go out the best way I could," said Bembenek. "I was a little nervous heading into the night, but was just going to give it my all."

In the consolation round Friday night, Bembenek was able to take first place out touching a few swimmers at the wall and finishing with a new season best of 52.67. This time locked up a ninth place finish for the Sea Gull senior.

finishing with yet another season best time of 1:53.27.

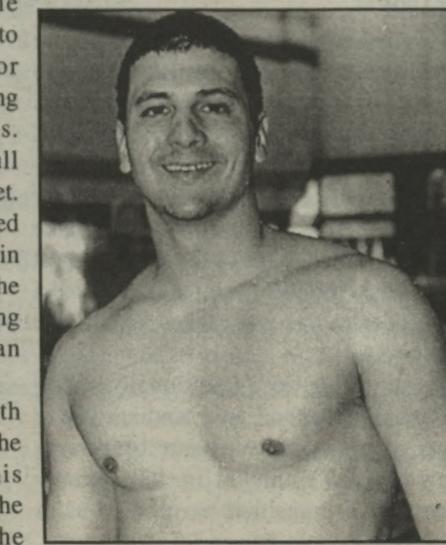

"I went into the race wanting to win and to go out on a good note. The swimmer in the lane next to me gave up early so I had to push myself. I had a lead coming into the end of the race. I saw someone in lane eight challenging me so I pushed myself and was able to win the race," said Bembenek.

The ninth place finish by Bembenek put Salisbury in first place ahead of Mary Washington College in the Capitol Athletic Conference standings. It also marked the end of the final season of Bembenek's swimming career.

"This was a very successful season for me. I achieved 95 percent of my goals for the season. I was one of the top swimmers in the conference and it's great to be able to say that I'm the best backstroker in Division III swimming in Maryland," said Bembenek.

"This was a great experience for Chris. He swam really well and worked hard to get there. I was happy for him. This was also good for our swim program. It gets our name out nationally," said Stephenson.

"I am planning to swim in a meet in Venezuela. I want to swim internationally for Panama, again," said Bembenek.

BOBCATS vs. SEA GULLS

Gulls look to continue winning ways over rival Frostburg

Paul Krome
Flyer Sports Writer

This week is Frostburg week for the SSU women's lacrosse team. Any Sea Gull athlete or fan knows what that means—the cross-state rival Bobcats are coming to town, and it's time to turn it up a notch.

Intensity will be at its usual Salisbury-Frostburg high at 1 p.m. Saturday, when the Gulls meet the Bobcats at the SSU athletics complex. But there's an added twist to this year's matchup, as former Sea Gull player and assistant coach Kristin Scarola returns to the Eastern Shore as an assistant coach for the Bobcats.

"It's a traditional rivalry game, and I don't expect anything less this year," said SSU head coach Dawn Chamberlin, who coached Scarola in both field hockey and lacrosse. "It's

Shorebirds look to defend SAL championship

Sam Atkinson
Sports Editor

For the Delmarva Shorebirds reaching the South Atlantic League (SAL) championship series in the first two years of existence has set high expectations for the 1998 squad. The 'Birds are the reigning champs after they defeated the Greensboro Bats in the championship series in a best-of-three games last year.

This year's squad, like previous ones, is young with raw talent. Most players have yet to play a full season in professional baseball. The Shorebirds have 18 players from the rookie-level Appalachian League champs Bluefield (W.Va.) Orioles on the roster.

Infielder Richard Paz and outfielders Curtis Charles and Luis Matos are the only returning players from last year's squad. Manager Dave going to be fun having Kristin back, but it may be a little difficult for her because she'll always have some allegiance to SSU." Scarola earned National Field Hockey Coaches Association first team All-America honors in her senior season of 1996.

Scarola may have slightly more incentive to win than just the desire to knock off her alma mater. The Bobcats haven't beaten the Sea Gulls since 1993. In a series that has been marked by streaks in the 1990s, Frostburg won four in a row before SSU's current four-game winning streak. One of the Gulls' biggest wins came in 1989, when they defeated a Bobcat team that was ranked sixth in the nation.

"They're a traditionally strong program with good goal tending. We're going to have to cut our turnovers down," said Chamberlin. "Too many turnovers in transition have killed us in these last couple games." Those games, losses to the College of New Jersey and Rowan, followed a 5-0 start. SSU will try to end its two-game skid tomorrow at Marymount in a Capital Athletic Conference (CAC) game.

One of the reasons for the Gulls' 5-2 record is their high-powered offense that features depth and a plethora of weapons from which Chamberlin may choose. Going into Thursday's loss to Rowan, SSU was averaging 14.5 goals per game, second among CAC teams. "One of the biggest differences this year

Gulls enter the stretch run of the regular season.

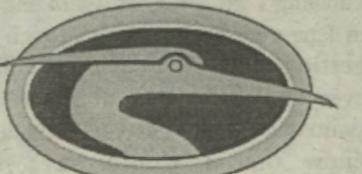

NOTES: Officials suspended Saturday's SSU-Gettysburg game with 13:28 remaining in the first half, deeming playing conditions unsafe in the driving rainstorm . . . The Gulls led 3-0 at that time on goals by Annie Sappington, Jen Ice and Courtney Ball...The two teams will attempt to complete the game, possibly at a neutral site . . . SSU's Mar. 31 game against Catholic, which was postponed, has been rescheduled for 4 p.m. Thursday, Apr. 16 at the SSU athletics complex . . . The Gulls complete their regular season at Washington College Apr. 18, with the CAC Tournament beginning Apr. 21.

Defensively, SSU is allowing just under nine goals per game. Goalies Lisa LeBeau and Jennifer Jovan have split time. LeBeau, a sophomore, has experience from last year, but Jovan, a junior, is a converted field player who volunteered to step in as another goalie. Both will continue to see time as the veteran. Werth, had signed with the University of Georgia, and was ranked the 22nd best prospect in the draft by Baseball America and the 12th best position player.

With his size of 6 feet-5 inches tall and 200 plus pounds Werth may get too big to catch, but has the athletic ability to move elsewhere.

McDonald may be the best player this year in the SAL but may not stay too long in a Delmarva uniform. After being selected as the Orioles second first-round pick, 26th overall, McDonald held out for a $2 million

see SHOREBIRDS, page 19

McDonald and Werth headline Shorebird lineup

SHOREBIRDS, from page 18 field and the arm strength to be a right fielder. The weakness against him is actual game experience. It will be interesting to see if he can switch from aluminum bats from high school to wooden bats in the minors. Also Cherry

Eddy Martinez was an Orioles top prospect two years ago looks to have an injury free season this year. In the past two years Martinez has been sidelined with injuries. When healthy, Martinez plays solid in the field and has the legs to steal bases. Juan Pacheco, Maikell Diaz and Paz round out the infield. Paz has the experience and the leadership to help guide this young infield.

Catchers

A lot of the attention will be focused on Werth this season due to his first round draft pick label. Chris Paxton looks to be the back up as he saw time last year in Bluefield, Frederick and Bowie. Paxton hit .303 in Bluefield slamming three home runs and knocking in 22 RBIs. Tom McGee is another catcher, but may also see time in the field somewhere. In 27 games last year McGee had one home run and eight RBIs.

Don't bet on Werth getting promoted rapidly as a full season in Single-A is needed. Also there are numerous catchers in front of him in the Orioles farm system, most notably Rochester catcher Melvin Rosario.

Outfielders

With two returning players and McDonald roaming the outfield, SAL opponents will find it hard to get many hits by them. Charles and McDonald are definitely two of the fastest players in the league and Matos has a strong arm. Darren Hooper and Ashanti Davison come up from Bluefield and should see playing time. Davison batted .247, 2, 25 last year for the Orioles. Charles came on strong in the playoffs for the Shorebirds as he had three home runs and stole 20 bags for the season. If McDonald doesn't rise quickly up the Baltimore Minor League ladder like he is expected to do, the Shorebirds pitchers won't have to worry when the ball is hit to the outfield.

Pitchers

The Shorebirds pitching staff coached by former Baltimore Oriole Dave Schmidt are led by Matt Achilles and Richard Bauer. Achilles was 7-2 at Bluefield with a 3.95 ERA and pitched the most among the current Shorebirds staff with 73 innings. He struck out 68 and walked 33 in 14 starts. Bauer was 8-3 at Bluefield with a 2.86 ERA and 67 strikeouts. Bauer pitched 72 innings and gave up 20 walks in 13 starts. John Stephens, in nine starts for the GCL, Orioles was 3-0 with a 0.82 ERA and in 33 innings had 43 strikeouts and only nine walks.

Tom Fontaine and possibly Norberto Perez, Chris Lea and Derek Brown round out the starting rotation

For the Orioles, it may be now or never

Time is not on Baltimore's side

Brian Burden
Flyer Sports Writer

There are two ways to look at the 1998 Baltimore Orioles. One point of view has the Orioles represented by a group of talented, experienced professionals who are renowned throughout the major leagues for their class. Another point of view states that virtually every member of the team could get into games this year at half price on their senior citizens discount.

There is no question that the Orioles are one of the top five teams in the majors, along with the Yankees, Indians, Mariners and Braves. They have ample talent and loads of experience and owner Peter Angelos has become well known for his desire to win, and his capability to open his pocketbook and buy that victory. In recent years, Angelos has rejuvenated a franchise rich in tradition but that had been wallowing in the second division for the better part of the last decade. Although his acquisitions this offseason have been a little less headlining than in the past, he has provided the Orioles with the opportunity to once again reach the elusive World Series.

The Orioles signed four veterans in the offseason and should reap solid, if not enormous dividends.

The pitching staff is one of the most feared and respected in the American League. With the addition of Drabek, the Orioles have five bonafide starters. In the expansion era, that alone can be considered impressive. Ace Mike Mussina is joined by Scott Erickson and Jimmy Key to form a dependable trio and Scott Kamienicki moves up a spot to become the team's fourth starter. The key to the starting rotation will be Key, a notable quick starter who faded in the second half last season. If he remains solid, it will be tough to snatch a victory.

The bullpen does have its question marks, although the middle relief is not one of them. Alan Mills, Jesse Orosco and Arthur Rhodes are all solid middle men and Charlton could make this group unstoppable if he can regain his control and confidence. Armando Benitez is finally being given the opportunity to establish himself as a full time closer. Some people are saying that the Orioles should still take their time. He's 25 years old and has been in the league for five years. It's time to see if he's more than just gas. Mariano Rivera sparkled in his first full season as a closer last year with the Yankees and Benitez should do the same.

The lineup is potent, but not necessarily dangerous. The team found success working for their runs last year after faltering in the playoffs two seasons ago with their all or nothing philosophy at the plate. Brady Anderson, with a new five-year, $31 million contract in tow, once again assumes the lead off spot. Although Anderson's 50 home runs two years ago seem harder to believe as each day passes, he is undoubtedly one of the most dangerous lead off men in the league. The top of the lineup will be solid with a healthy Roberto Alomar returning to switch hitting and Cal Ripken is good for 20 home runs and 85 RBIs. Eric Davis (.304, 8, 25) could have a huge impact if he stays healthy.

Rafael Palmeiro will provide the bulk of the offensive punch and Chris Hoiles and Carter will be dependable in the middle, along with 39-year-old Harold Baines. B.J. Surhoff seems year. Jeffrey Hammonds is due for a big year. He is past his injuries and this is the year he needs to establish himself as the next Oriole star.

Defense has always won games in Baltimore and this year should be no different. It's hard to imagine balls getting through the infield with Palmeiro, Alomar, Bordick and Ripken patrolling the dirt. Erickson in particular, a ground ball pitcher, must be in heaven. They will be as dependable as ever.

In the outfield, Anderson is set in center, Hammonds and Davis in right, with Carter and Surhoff platooning in left. This is a mistake free outfield, with Anderson providing the occasional highlight reel catches.

This is the year of reckoning for the Orioles. They are an old team, and that is not even their biggest concern. Two of the team's best players, Alomar and Palmeiro will be free agents after this season and will be much tougher to sign than Anderson and Mussina were this offseason. There is no immediate help from the minors as the Orioles have produced few system grown players that have stuck since Ripken came up in 1982. That was 16 years ago and Ripken's Iron Man streak is in more jeopardy now than it ever was.

One of the biggest concerns for the Orioles is the American League East itself. It has four solid teams with the Orioles, Yankees, Blue Jays and the Boston Red Sox all fielding strong clubs. The expansion Devil Rays should give these teams an equal opportunity to add no easy games within the four teams this season.

If nothing else, the Orioles are confident that this will be their third straight appearance in the playoffs and they will be able to take that next step beyond the American League Championship series. Whether or not they can hold off the AL East and the Indians and Mariners come playoff time is a different story itself.

Outstanding Academic Advisor Award

SSU wants you, as an SSU student, to nominate your faculty advisor for the Outstanding Academic Advisor Award.

Each year SSU recognizes faculty advisors who demonstrate outstanding advising skills. Past winners have included Dr. Amy Meekins (Education), Dr. Gerard DiBartolo (Business), Professor Robert Long (Social Work) and Dr. Elichia Vensio (Biology). Is your advisor easy to talk to? Does your advisor take the time to help you think through academic decisions? Does your advisor deserve to be recognized for an outstanding job of advising that goes beyond simply signing a program planning form? If so, you may want to nominate your advisor for this university-wide advising award. It's easy to do. Just pick up a nomination form from the University Center Information Desk, Academic Affairs (HH 248) or the Dean's Office of one of the schools, fill it out, and return it by April 24 to any of those areas. Spread the word - tell a friend. We want to give as many students as possible the chance to honor good advising and good advisors!

Welcome back SSU! The ladies of Zeta Tau Alpha hope that everyone had a great Spring Break. Did everyone get a shower card on April 1? Zeta's national philanthropy is the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer society and we want to promote monthly self exams. If anyone didn't get a shower card and would like one, feel free to call Alie at 548-3514. Greek Week is going well. The Carnival on Friday was a lot of fun. Congratulations to Tick, our Hot Pepper Eatn' Contest winner. Nice try Brandon and Jennie! We are excited about the upcoming Greek Week events. We already received first place in the song contest. Who knew we were song birds? Did everyone have fun at Banquet? It was a blast. Nice job Jaime and Liz. Happy Belated Birthday to Jenny, Terry

Welcome back from break. We hope everyone had a great time. We still have a few t-shirts left, so hurry and act fast. Also, CPR certification programs are in the works, so remember to sign up quick. This is a great opportunity for lifeguards or camp counselors who need to get certified. Congratulations go out to Brother Arnie and his successful completion of the second part of his journey. Good luck to everyone in Greek Week, don't forget to come check out the Buck Naked DJs at the Crossroads on April 9 for a post-Greek Week celebrations. Until next week, Sig Ep is just TOO SWEET....
